Pupils show how much they are looking forward to the Olympics

Pupils show some early Olympian spirit

YOUNGSTERS at one Up Holland school got into the Olympic spirit early when they held a celebration of the London 2012 games which are set to take place in the capital next summer.

Pupils at Up Holland High School took part in a series of sporting events last week in honour of the Olympic and Paralympic Games which will captivate the nation and a global television audience of billions next year.

All the lessons for the week had a sporting theme in honour of world sport's biggest occasion.

STORE WELCOME, BUT WHAT ABOUT THE VISION?

A computer generated image of how the proposed food store at the Concourse will look.

Report by Henry James

CHIEFS at the borough council and developers St Modwen are remaining tight–lipped on the progress of the £350million Skelmersdale Vision project following the announcement that a new supermarket could be opening in the town.

The Champion has asked for an update on the scheme to reassure the town's residents that the project was on track but neither would comment this week.

It is now over three years since The Masterplan for the Skelmersdale Vision was published. Since then the borough does have a new £42.8m West Lancashire College campus.

But the town has yet to see any development on other proposals mentioned in the Masterplan such as a new high street linking the Concourse Centre and Asda, to include a cinema, bars and restaurants and apartments.

Plans were also put forward for a new library, sports centre, swimming pool and ecumenical centre.

The Vision had been put on hold two years ago but in late 2009 the proposals for the regeneration of the town centre were back on the agenda following the decision by the Government to reject plans for a retail and Everton football stadium development in Kirkby.

Meanwhile Skelmersdale Limited Partnership, owners of the Concourse Shopping Centre, will invite feedback on plans to bring a new food supermarket to the centre in Skelmersdale, at an exhibition. The proposals will be on display in Unit 144 in the Atrium of the Concourse this Friday (December 9) between 10am and 7pm and members of the development team will be available to answer any questions between 11am and 3pm. People can also view the plans on Saturday, December 10 between 10am and 5pm.

Proposals include replacing the existing multi–storey car park with a large new foodstore, with car parking. A new decked car park would also be built next to McDonalds.

Jo Salmon, asset manager from London and Cambridge Properties on behalf of the Skelmersdale Limited Partnership said: "Our proposals are for a large new foodstore which would attract one of the major food retailers, not currently in Skelmersdale, to locate at the Concourse."

'We'll listen over new homes plan'

Report by David Simister

Council vows to consider views of residents before making decision

'WE'LL listen to residents' concerns over plans set to shape how West Lancashire will look in years to come', the borough council has promised

The Champion reported last week on plans by the local authority to build 4,650 new homes at sites across the borough in a bid to cope with future demand.

And at a meeting last Thursday (December 1) the council said that it had listened to the feedback it had been given during a consultation it had on its Local Development Framework earlier this year.

Councillor Martin Forshaw, the council's cabinet member for planning, said: "The council has selected its preferred option for where development may take place in West Lancashire over the next 15 years.

"This is an important step in deciding where and how West Lancashire will develop over the next few years.

"Once the document has been approved by Cabinet members, it will go out to the public for consultation.

"This will allow everyone who has an opinion to have their say on the plans and help shape the final decision, which will be made next year."

Cllr Forshaw added that the latest version of the development plans, now known as the Local Plan, will be available for further representation next year, with any comments being submitted to a Government inspector for an Examination in Public process.

The council's Labour opposition, however, claimed the council had avoided proper consultation with residents over the plans.

Councillor John Fillis said: "They have betrayed the people of West Lancashire and especially those who live in Up Holland by deliberately avoiding honest consultation.

"They are now trying to rush things through the council with minimal consultation to prevent local people from organising opposition to the Tories proposals.

"I would ask people to let the Tories know about their plans to build on the Green Belt around Up Holland by saying 'No' to their proposals."

The latest version of the plan, which has upped the target for new housing from 4,500 to 4,650, advocates less emphasis on building in Skelmersdale and Up Holland in favour of other settlements across West Lancashire, the development of land in Ormskirk to allow for an extension of Edge Hill University, and the use of Grove Farm in Ormskirk and Yew Tree Farm in Burscough as the preferred sites for any green belt development.

A public consultation will begin in January.

More information will also be available online at the council's local development website at www.westlancs.gov.uk/ldf and on the local authority's Twitter and Facebook pages.

‘Fantastic start’ for children’s community café

Youngsters and police at the recently opened community café.

A COMMUNITY café, launched at Tanhouse Community Centre in Skelmersdale, which aims to provide a safe haven for children, has got off to a ‘fantastic start’ say volunteers.

The café is run by a team of volunteers and encourages local children to take part in a variety of activities while learning about healthy eating.

The eight month project has been led by local youth officer, PCSO Stephen Edmond, and is supported by local groups including Skelmersdale Action for Youth, Oaks Church, Tanhouse Action Group, Cosmopolitan Housing Group and the Countryside Rangers.

Officers are now appealing for community volunteers to help staff the café and are urging businesses to sponsor the project.

PCSO Edmond said: “This project gives local children something to do, and also helps to break down barriers between the younger and older members of the community.

“Since the opening last month, we have seen an average of 30 children come to the café each week and the older volunteers have been delighted by the response. But we really need more volunteers to help keep the café running.”

Local councillor Nikki Hennessey, who called into the café, said: “It’s fantastic to see the community centre alive with such a brilliant activity.

“The kids are helping each other, playing nice and the food looks really nice.”

One of the volunteers added: “After months of hard work it’s finally opened and what a fantastic start! The children have been great – they clear the tables and help tidy away at the end of the night.”

The café is open daily from 5pm to 7pm. To volunteer or sponsor the project contact PCSO Edmond on 01695 566051.

Council ‘used 22 agency workers in one job’

Report by Henry James

A LABOUR councillor has blasted the council for not explaining why 22 different agency workers were used to cover one housing services job in 18 months.

Councillor Chris Mawdsley said it showed that the Conservative–run council has failed to get to grips with provision of services.

He said the recent Peer Review report states one manager told the review that 22 different agency staff had been employed to cover the same post in the department – a rate of more than one worker per month.

“When council chiefs were questioned at the recent Corporate Overview and Scrutiny committee meeting they still did not know if this information was correct or not,” Cllr Mawdsley said.

The review was conducted by Helena Partnerships, as part of plans to improve housing services, which was given a zero–rated mark from the Audit Commission.

Cllr Mawdsley added: “It is simply incredible that the Conservative–run borough council thinks it is acceptable to run such vital services as housing in this way.

“To have had 22 different workers doing the same one job in such a short period of time shows there is something seriously wrong with how this council works.

“It shows me and the people who pay their council rents that the tenants are not this council’s priority. It really doesn’t say much either for the council as an employer that agency staff were lasting less than one month.

“As if this was not bad enough then when questioned about this shambolic state of affairs the answer is they don’t know if this is the case or not.

“It just beggars belief. Here is a piece of information in a public document and they haven’t bothered to find out if this is true or not. Given that the Conservative leader committed a blank cheque to improve housing services, I think this council is throwing more of the tenants’ money down the drain.

“The review goes on to state that ”an over–reliance on agency is having a negative impact on service delivery.“

The council was not able to comment.

Council set to honour borough's first mayor

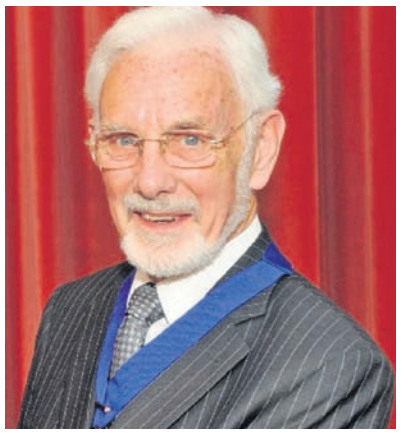
By David Simister

THE first ever mayor of West Lancashire is set to be made an honorary alderman at a council meeting taking place tonight.

Geoff M Roberts served as a Conservative councillor for the Aughton Park ward from 1984 until his retirement earlier this year and became mayor of West Lancashire after the council was granted borough status in 2008.

Mr Roberts, who will receive the title of borough alderman in Ormskirk tonight, said: "It is an honour for me to be given this title, which I'm very grateful to receive as it's rare for someone to be made an honorary alderman of West Lancashire.

"To be a councillor, a leader of the council and then to be the first ever mayor of West Lancashire is something which is unusual in itself, and now to be made an alderman is something I'm honored to receive."



Geoff M Roberts

Mr Roberts will receive the title of Honorary Alderman of the Borough of West Lancashire "in recognition of the eminent services which he has rendered to the council of the borough of West Lancashire during the continuous 27 years in which he was a member of the council and its predecessor authority, the former West Lancashire District Council."

He first joined West Lancashire District Council in 1984, and became its leader in 2002 after the Conservative party won back control of the local authority from Labour.

In 2008, following the council's change to borough status, he became West Lancashire's first ever mayor and his time in local politics has been praised by his colleagues, including Councillor Ian Grant, West Lancashire Borough Council's current leader.

Cllr Grant told The Champion earlier this year: "I have always appreciated Geoff's wise words and advice as ward colleague and especially when I took over from him as council leader.

"He can look back on his many years of service with great satisfaction knowing that he has served West Lancashire with great distinction."

Councillors Terry Alridge and John Fillis.

New leaders at helm

WEST Lancashire's Labour opposition is being fronted by new faces after the party selected a new leader and deputy leader this week.

The party has selected Up Holland councillor John Fillis as leader, while Digmoor councillor Terry Aldridge has become the party's new deputy leader.

The new leaders say their priority is to challenge "a timid response" by Conservatives to economic problems.

Councillor Fillis said: "I am very honoured and proud to be elected Leader of the Labour Group. Times are hard so we will be working harder to meet the many challenges faced by local people. It's important that we work our way out of these troubled times while supporting those most vulnerable in our community."

"We have to ensure that council services meet the needs of local people within costs. People recognise money's tight but that does not mean we give up. The Tories have decided to put up the shutters and pretend there is no one in. This is the time that the council should be out there listening. We in the Labour Group will be working with local people to make the Tories listen."

The change comes after Councillor Neil Furey stood down as the opposition leader. He will continue to represent the Skelmersdale North Ward.

Boost for boxing club

THE Birch Green Amateur Boxing Club has been given a boost after two participants of the Birchwood Centre Three Peaks Challenge donated £500 to help the newly established club.

Vicky Birch and Lauren Doyle took part in the gruelling event last July with other residents.

Vicky said: "We always wanted to donate some of the money raised from the challenge to a local project and the boxing club was our first choice.

"It is run completely by volunteers who have inspired loads of local kids in Skelmersdale. We are made up to help them in any way." The club, based in the Meeting Rooms in Heversham, took over the derelict premises in November and, with help from local businesses, completely refurbished the building to provide facilities to young budding local boxers.

Ian Paterson, treasurer, who was delighted to receive the cheque from Vikki and Lauren said: "We are very grateful for this donation. I would like to dedicate the rebirth of the club to the memory of the original founder Joe O'Brien."

Robber pointed gun at female shop assistant

Report by Henry James

A FEMALE shop assistant working on her own was subjected to a terrifying ordeal in the third armed robbery to hit the Skelmersdale area in the last four weeks.

The robbery happened at 7.30pm on Saturday at a newsagents on Hawthorn Crescent in Skelmersdale, when a man entered the shop and threatened her with a handgun and demanded money.

The assistant refused to hand over any money and the man then opened the till and stole cash before making off.

He was seen to run across High Street towards the Woodrow estate area.

Last week The Champion reported that two customers were left extremely shaken and frightened after they had a gun pointed at them during an armed robbery at K&H Hives store in Tanfields on Sunday, November 27.

That robbery happened just two weeks after an armed raid at a post office in Up Holland.

Lancashire Police said they are keeping an open mind on whether the incidents are connected.

The newsagents on Hawthorn Crescent in Skelmersdale.

Police said the offender in the Hawthorn Crescent incident was white, about 5ft 8 and of slim build. He was wearing dark clothing, including a jacket.

Detective Sergeant Jon Cass from Skelmersdale CID said: "The attack was a very frightening ordeal for the lone female member of staff. Prior to the attack it is believed the man was outside the shop waiting for a customer to leave. I'd like to speak to anyone who visited the shop, the convenience store next to it, or who was in the area between 7pm and 7.40pm on Saturday."

Contact Skelmersdale CID on 01695 566035.

Brace yourself! Snow on the way

WEST LANCASHIRE residents should be bracing themselves for snow tomorrow and Friday as the Met Office yesterday issued a severe weather warning.

The temperature could plummet as low as –1 Celsius in the region and residents should be aware that snow could potentially impact on transport and other services.

Met Office officials have said that the public should be aware as snow will be heavy at times and may be accompanied by gales on Thursday.

A Met Office spokesperson said: "North West snow showers are expected late on Thursday and through Friday. The public should be aware that these will be heavy at times, and may give significant accumulations that could disrupt travel.

"Gale or severe gale force northwesterly winds will accompany the snow showers, perhaps leading to drifting over high ground, but these winds will slowly moderate during Friday. The public are advised to take extra care."

Games bosses in tour of uni

Report by Henry James

WITH only months to go before Edge Hill University becomes "home" to athletes for the London 2012 Games Olympic, bosses have been given a grand tour of its facilities.

The Ormskirk–based university is one of only three universities in the North West to have been chosen as a training camp for teams from a number of Oceanic countries.

The university has a £4m sports complex, Sporting Edge, which is set in 25 acres of landscaped grounds, with excellent media facilities

Vice–chancellor John Cater and sport experts from the university, together with partners at the borough council, were on campus to show off the facilities on Saturday.

Visitors were shown the running track, therapy clinic, sports hall, gym, student hub and accommodation. Coaching staff and officials from Liverpool Pembroke Athletics Club, who are based at Edge Hill, talked about the training support.

Dr Tony Charlton, associate head of Sports Development and Sports Studies at the university, said: "It's fantastic that we've been chosen as a training camp for some of the world's talented athletes as they prepare to compete in the Games.

"It's nice that we're able to bring a bit of London 2012 to Ormskirk and it will be a great opportunity to get students, staff and the local community involved in the experience."

Teams that will be training at Edge Hill include American Samoa, Cook Islands, Federated States of Micronesia, Marshall Islands and Palau.

Councillor Andrew Fowler, cabinet member for health and leisure at West Lancashire Borough Council, said: "West Lancashire is very much looking forward to the Olympic Games next year and is proud to welcome competitors from Oceania.

"The area has developed a reputation for sporting excellence and it's great that the fantastic facilities at Edge Hill should be used for such a prestigious event."

The visit to the UK is being supported by Olympic Solidarity and is aimed at supporting the National Olympic Committees across Oceania in their preparation for the Games.

Dr Robin Mitchell, president of Oceania National Olympic Committees, said: "Since signing our agreement. I am pleased to see how well the partnership has developed with a number of training camps having taken place and programmes put in place in the North West and back in the Pacific."

Think of what you stand to lose, say police

Drivers urged to consider dire consquences of drink driving

By David Simister

IF you think of the consquences – it's an easy decision on whether to drink and drive.

That's the message from police as they launch their Christmas crackdown on both drink driving and driving while under the influence of drugs.

The campaign will run until January 1 across the county, including at checkpoints in West Lancashire.

Supt Peter O'Dwyer said: "We want people to enjoy the festive season but to remember the consequences of driving whilst under the influence of alcohol or drugs. Statistics show that around one in six fatal collisions in Lancashire involve either drink or drugs or both and this is simply not acceptable.

"The consequences of drink driving are high – if you drive at twice the legal alcohol limit you are at least 30 times more likely to cause a road crash than a driver who hasn't been drinking, potentially resulting in serious injury or death. A conviction could also mean that you lose your job, home, family and friends. The consequences can be absolutely devastating."

The force added that the number of people caught drink and drug driving continues to fall in Lancashire, with two per cent of the 10,006 people tested during last year's Christmas campaign failing or refusing a test.

The campaign is also being supported by Lancashire County Council, who said that the decision not to drink if you are planning to drive is a simple one which could save lives.

Tim Ashton, the county council's cabinet member for highways and transport, said: "We work very hard to reduce the number of people killed or injured on our roads but all that effort counts for nothing if individuals make the decision to drink and drive.

"Drink driving can result in serious or even fatal collisions and you won't just ruin Christmas for you and your family – your actions could have serious long term consequences for yourself and others.

"Even a conviction could make a big difference to your life. If you think for just one second about what could happen, the decision whether to drink and drive is very easy – it's a risk that's simply not worth taking."

If you would like to report someone who you suspect of driving whilst under the influence of alcohol or drugs, contact Lancashire Constabulary on 0845 1 25 35 45.

Firm's claim of 'backing' for wind turbine disputed

Report by Henry James

RESIDENTS have disputed claims that the proposed building of a 125 metre wind turbine at the Walkers Crisps plant in Pimbo has the backing of local people.

The company has stated that surveys, following an exhibition about plans for the turbine, which would generate 30% of power for the site, showed that it had the support by residents.

Several readers have contacted The Champion claiming the survey was not reprentative of most people's views, and that there is strong opposition to the proposals.

One resident, Euna Flaherty, from Digmoor, told The Champion: "The exhibition PepsiCo put on was attended by only a few people, and some of these thought it was a good idea.

"To suggest that these few people spoke for all of Skelmersdale is wrong. They do not speak for all the residents.

"There is strong opposition to this plan – we do not want Skelmersdale to be blighted by this huge structure.

"We do not want our town to be part of a wind farm.

"I have lived in Skelmersdale for 44 years and I do not want our town to be blighted by this monstrosity just so that PepsiCo can make a bit more profit.

"I suppose these residents who 'backed' the plan will (if the plan is accepted) not be complaining about the noise, the light flicker and the interference with their TV pictures?"

Skelmersdale resident Alan Horridge believes Walkers cannot measure public support for their proposal because "they had a small number of respondents to a self selecting 'survey'."

A PepsiCo spokesperson responded: "Our application has been carefully considered and we've gone through an extensive and close consultation with the local community, attending several public meetings and listening to the views of residents.

"We're confident that this application is a positive for the local community – if successful, the wind turbine will not only reduce the use of fossil fuel based energy on our Skelmersdale manufacturing site but will also deliver significant investment in the local area through job creation."

Regional win for Skem Men–Aces

Report by Henry James

A DISABILITY football club from Skelmersdale has notched up another win after being given the "be inspired" award at the Lancashire Sports Awards 2011.

Manager Carl Eaton received the accolade on behalf of Skem Men–Aces Disability Football Club.

Skem Men–Aces have had to overcome a range of challenges to be where they are today. Organisers of the recent evening said that the club was awarded due to its inspiring nature and fundraising events, but most of all the friendship and fun it provides to members.

Carl Eaton said: "It was like being at the Oscars at the awards evening. It seemed to take an eternity when they opened the envelope to reveal the winner. There was a silence while the envelope was opened, then I heard Skem Men–aces had won and a massive applause.

"I was ushered onto the stage to give a speech. My nerves got the better of me and I ended up dropping the impressive glass award, it is a good job that I am not the goalie.

"The team also want to say a big thank you to the Skelmersdale community for their support over the last two years. We also appreciate our sponsors help and they include Graylaw Freight, Smith and Sons and Blades hairdressers. Without the communities help we wouldn't be where we are today."

Altaf Patel, from MWR Solicitors (the event sponsors) who presented the award to the club, said: "The biggest word in the football club is respect; for their kit, their coaches and most of all each other. The club is like a family and it is wonderful to see them recognised for their achievements."

The awards were judged by former England captain, Jimmy Armfield OBE, Jane Booker of MWR Solicitors and Dave Edmondson from the Football League Trust.

Transcendental Meditation movement is exclusive club

The Transcendental Meditation movement has changed completely since we started meditating in the mid 1970s.

Then, everyone was welcome. It was about people realizing their own potential, no matter who they were, to have a better society.

We were all are a very important part of this idea that the late Maharishi was talking about.

With the way the movement operated then, we felt a part of this growing change, and with this we helped in the running of our local branches, ie, jumble sales, evening events, local trips, weekend courses and the many other things to help our branch.

And the main thing on this was Maharishi, with vidoes, explained life and our relationship to this, with the important key this relationship meditation.

But a change took place in the TM movement.

In time we started to have a club where only those that can afford it were allowed in, yet at the same time claimed it was for everyone.

On the one hand we had Maharishi taking about the world and how we are all an intrinsic part of this, and the movement had become a middle–class club very much like a golf club.

I am sorry to say that the Maharishi, in his effort to speed up the process of more people doing TM has led to the opposite.

Hospital cost cutting should start at the top

Having read the report in The Champion I was stunned to see that Southport and Ormskirk Hospital chief Jonathan Parry was suggesting that nurses forego a day's pay.

Nurses are not overpaid by any means, but they are certainly over–worked.

Why doesn't Mr Parry start by reducing the amount of pen pushers at the top instead of always targeting the nurses who earn their money, not like some.

It beggars belief ,when one recalls how the nurses, and also the rest of staff struggled to get to work last winter, that they are being asked to lose a day's pay. So Mr Parry, start your cost cutting at the top and leave the nurses to get on with saving lives.

We love and need our nurses.

They should be given more, not less.

And here's a thought.

Why not charge all the drunks who cause mayhem every weekend for any treatment they receive. It would save thousands.

Do not lose out on benefits

The government is planning the biggest shake–up of the benefits system in 60 years through its Welfare Reform Bill.

While we agree the system is complex and needs to be simplified we are concerned that proposed benefits changes in the Bill could mean that thousands of people with cancer are left without vital financial support.

The Bill is now in its final stages in Parliament so time is running out to make sure that people with cancer do not lose out on crucial benefits.

You can help us campaign by signing our petition at www. macmillan.org.uk/welfare. The more support we get, the stronger our message to politicians will be.

For questions about cancer, or to find out more about the benefits people living with cancer are entitled to, call Macmillan free on 0808 808 00 00 (Monday–Friday, 9am–8pm)

We are proud of our record

The Champion (November 30) includes two letters relating to Edge Hill University.

In response to 'Champion Reader', the accurate figure for the number of individuals who received a salary of some kind from the university in the academic year 2010/11 is 3,359 (Higher Education Statistics Agency Staff Record 2011), with a total wage bill of £52,504,000.

Your second correspondent rightly points out that Oxford and Ormskirk are not comparable.

Out of 93 public universities in England, the two universities have, however, occupied first and second place respectively for students' personal development in each of the past two National Student Surveys, a record which we are rightly proud of.

Dr John Cater,
Vice–Chancellor, Edge Hill University

Charging drivers to use roads is highway robbery

While everyone's attention is on the damage caused by high fuel prices, a new report effectively proposes imposing road pricing on our major roads.

It can even be read as suggesting them for our local roads, ultimately forcing drivers to pay to travel on roads everywhere.

Britain's drivers already pay through the nose – roughly £50 billion each year in taxes in return for about £8 billion in roads investment.

This has, unfortunately, been the pattern for many years. Investment in relieving our congested roads has in fact been paid for in advance several times over.

When families everywhere are feeling the pinch on motoring costs, there is absolutely no case for adding to our tax burden.

These proposals are nothing less than 'highway robbery' and must be rejected.

Parents with children need wide parking spaces

It is true that some elderly and people with a disability require dedicated spaces and I agree that pregnancy is most certainly not an illness.

However, I assume you have never tried to get a child into a car seat or try to fit or remove a baby seat when you can't get the door open due to the car in the next bay being so close.

I and many other parents would never dream of parking in a disabled bay. However, I frequently see elderly and disabled people using parent and child car spaces within supermarkets with no come back.

The reason parents require dedicated spaces is not due to them being lazy and not wanting to walk far, it is the bonus of being able to open your door wide enough to safely secure your child into the car without injuring yourself or the child or damaging your car or the car in the next bay!

Footballers leave mess on the park

Re: Scott Estate Football Field.

As a resident of Scott Estate we walk our dog on the football field.

This afternoon (Sunday) I counted 28 empty bottles and cans all just left around the goal and side lines.

Could the managers not ask the team to take their litter home with them?

We take the care to pick up after our dog and use the bins provided.

It disgusts me and I think the council should fine these teams for the state they leave the field in.

MP holds advice day on how to cope with bills

WORRIED West Lancashire residents wondering how to look after their family and home this winter are being urged to attend an advice day being organised by the borough's MP.

Rosie Cooper said that she is organising the community advice and information day, which is being held at the Ecumenical Centre in Skelmersdale this Friday, to offer support to families who are facing "difficult times" this winter.

The Labour MP said "For many people and families in West Lancashire these are difficult times and people are feeling the pinch. I want to ensure that people have access to the organisations that can offer them some advice, information and support that will make it a little bit easier.

" Whether it is advice about getting back to work, finding the right training opportunities, how to manage your money, help to reduce those energy bills as winter arrives.

"I want to ensure that local residents have got the best advice, access to all the support they are entitled to and are getting value for money.

"There is something here for people of all ages and with different needs. So I am encouraging all local residents to pop along on the day. It could make a real difference for you and your family."

Among the topics being covered at the event, which takes place between 10am and 2pm, are pensions and benefits, health checks, money management advice, health and wellbeing checks, help with energy costs, advice on how to make your home safer and on giving your child the best start. Many national and local organisations have been invited and will have a stall with experts on hand to speak to residents and offer specific advice on their needs.

For more information, ring Rosie Cooper's constituency office on 01695 570094.

Anniversary art goes on show at college display

By Henry James

AN exhibition of contemporary photography is being held at the new West Lancashire College campus as part of an ongoing creative arts projects to mark the 50th anniversary of Skelmersdale New Town.

The arts project, which has received Arts Council funding and is a collaboration between the college, the borough council, Lancashire County Council and the Engine Rooms, will culminate in March 2012 with the staging of 'Skelmersdale the Musical.'

The photographs on display in this exhibition were taken by residents who attended recent free photography workshops run by local professional Michael Lowey, and they aim to show the town in both positive and challenging ways.

Photographer and exhibition coordinator Michael Lowey has said: "The brief was simply to photograph the town and no other restraints were put on what the people photographed or how.

"Skelmersdale, and the new college in particular, provided our photographers with some fantastic opportunities to take images that are striking and at times thought–provoking."

The exhibition is held in Cafe West at the entrance to the West Lancashire College campus, College Way, Skelmersdale, WN8 6DX, and is open to the public from Tuesday, January 3 to Thursday January 26 (Monday to Thursday only, 9am – 7pm).

Hospital death rates 'higher than expected'

By Natasha Young

A HIGHER than expected number of patients died following treatment at Southport and Ormskirk Hospital NHS Trust, according to this year's Dr Foster Hospital Guide – but health chiefs say they are confident survival rates have improved since the report was collated.

The report measured mortality at hospital trusts throughout the country in four different measures, including the 'Summary Hospital–level Mortality Indicator' (SHMI). This counts the deaths of patients following treatment either in hospital or within 30 days following discharge.

The data shows that the trust's SHMI number was higher than predicted at 110.

Geraldine Boocock.

Mortality figures for the hospitals using other measures fell in line with predictions.

The figure for HSMRs which measures deaths while in hospital care from conditions which represent 80% of deaths was 107, while the 0.89 deaths in 'low risk condition' which includes deaths from conditions where patients would normally survive and 60 'deaths after surgery' which includes patients who have died from a possible complication after surgery.

The trust's medical director Dr Geraldine Boocock said: "The new Summary Hospital–level Mortality Indicator (SHMI) adds to the wide range of evidence the trust uses to continuously improve the quality services we provide.

"We are confident that both the trust's SHMI and HSMR survival scores have improved strongly since the period included in the report, bringing them into the range expected for our type of hospital trust."

‘Pre–loading’ can get you in trouble, revellers warned

By Henry James

Most young people get drunk before going for a night out

GETTING drunk at home or ‘pre–loading’ before going to a bar or nightclub could seriously damage your night out, festive revellers are being warned.

West Lancashire Community Safety Partnership issued the advice after research carried out by Lancaster University for the Lancashire Drug and Alcohol Action Team showed an increase in people getting drunk at home before going out, known as ‘pre–loading.’

The partnership is supporting Safer Lancashire’s Make Your Night Last campaign for the festive period.

The research found that 58% of 18–35 years olds in the region ‘pre–loaded’ before going out, with more women than men (60% and 55%) drinking to excess before leaving the house with many mentioning cost as a reason.

It often leads to people becoming very drunk earlier in the night and increased levels of crime.

County Councillor David Smith, chairman of the Safer Lancashire Partnership, said: “When people get too drunk, they are more likely to get involved in fights, end up in A and E, lose their friends and possessions or accidentally cause a fire in their home.

“This can create a real headache for those who are left to pick up the pieces such as the police, medical staff and fire brigade. They may be so drunk, they won’t even remember what happened but the people who have been left to clear up their mess definitely won’t remember it being a good night out.”

Billboards, along with posters in bars plus targeted advertising on Facebook will all be used to spread the message that drinking too much before stepping out of the front door can seriously damage your night out.

A Facebook page has also been set up to encourage young people to share their tips on how they make their night last longer and safer, whether that is alternating alcoholic drinks with water or making sure your stay with your friends. Visit www.make yournightlast.co.uk and click through to Facebook to share tips for a top night out.

Dave Tilleray, chairman of the West Lancashire Community Safety Partnership, added: “We want people to enjoy themselves while they’re out and about, but they should also be aware of the consequences of excessive drinking and how a great night can be spoiled by having a few drinks too many.”

Just be careful what you say – but it's okay to swear

I'D swear that our judges have all, or mostly, gone barking mad.

The latest pronouncement from the aptly named Mr Justice Bean that because uttering obscenities in public has now become common, they no longer cause distress.

The silly Mr Bean reckons our police officers should by now be so inured to being sworn at by those they have apprehended committing a suspected felony that they should take it on the chin and not arrest the b*s.

And this at a time when everyone has to watch every word they say because they may, even unwittingly, cause offence to somebody else and have their collar felt by those very same police officers who are not supposed to be offended by foul language directed at them!

I am not a prude. I have been known to utter the odd expletive, even some quite obscene ones. Like just last week when my brother managed to spill engine oil onto the carpet in our boat because, against my better advice, he had decided to service the thing himself.

But there is a world of difference between a swear word after an unexpected unpleasant event (like knocking your thumb with a hammer) and using, for instance, the 'f' word every other word in a sentence as some folk seem to find quite normal.

I think this started because those guilty of it simply find it difficult to remember what exactly they are trying to say and use the expletive as 'thinking time'.

Trouble is, it then becomes a habit.

But even this is not really what I am talking about. If, as is now the case, it is 'unacceptable' to use certain words that may possibly give offence, then surely the widespread use of profanities must also come into this category?

The fact that a distressingly large proportion of the community many now think such language is the norm has nothing to do with it.

The fact is that many people ARE still distressed when they hear disgusting words being shouted in the street, in pubs and on public transport. And I'd defy anyone who would not be distressed in one way or another if they were called a 'f* w*' in a face to face confrontation.

Most people now find the use of gratuitous swearing on TV to be distasteful and very often unnecessary.

I don't think anyone would seriously want to ban swearing on the box – it has become part of modern life.

I hesitate to say standards are slipping – because to do so these day brings forth cries of 'snob' or 'toff'.

I read recently that those of us who still champion the use of correct English are simply living in the past and need to wake up to the modern world of e–mail and Twitter.

Why being computer literate means you must in fact become illiterate beats me, but there it is.

In era of so–called tolerance it it strange that those seemingly set on reducing the language to the lowest common denominator, are determined to poke fun at those of us who would rather stick to more or less plain English.

Oh, and punctuate it properly as well. If the proper use of the apostrophe is no longer taught in our schools (perhaps teachers no longer know it?) then it's probably better to omit it altogether.

It all makes me want to swear.

Dodgy dealers top list of complaints

By Henry James David Simister

USED cars are the biggest cause of complaint to the county's Trading Standards teams, it has been revealed this week.

Dodgy motors brought more than 700 calls to officers with 'clocked' and 'unroadworthy' vehicles topping the list.

County Councillor Albert Atkinson, deputy leader of Lancashire County Council, said: "We continue to receive a high number of complaints which are often due to traders refusing to deal with legitimate complaints or provide appropriate compensation.

"Our Trading Standards service provides guidance to the 900–plus car dealers operating within the county and we take action against those who flout the law. But we're also keen for buyers to know their rights and take some basic steps which can help to avoid being sold a dud in the first place."

Consumer rights vary depending upon who the car is bought from. Going to a dealer is usually the safest option, but buyers are also advised to seek an established firm with a good reputation and to ask friends if they can recommend one.

Private sellers often offer the cheapest prices but buyers are urged to be cautious and be aware they will not have the full legal protection.

Some dodgy dealers will pretend to be private sellers to avoid their legal obligations and get rid of faulty or overpriced cars. Unlike dealers, private buyers have no business premises making it difficult to trace them should things go wrong.

Lancashire Trading Standards added that it is now backing an Office of Fair Trading campaign to encourage buyers to beware of the pitfalls and brush up on their rights.

Consumers are also advised to go back to the trader as soon as possible if they discover the car is faulty. If there's a problem contact Consumer Direct on 0845 040506.

Have you had a tale of woe when buying your secondhand car? Get in touch with with an email to david.simister@champnews.com or by calling 01704 392404.

Mayoress in plea for Rudolph runners

DO your bit for charity and enjoy a spot of festive fun this weekend when the first ever Rudolph Run takes place in Ormskirk.

Sue Murrin–Bailey, the mayoress of West Lancashire, told The Champion she was keen for residents of all ages and abilities to get involved with inaugural fun run, which takes place at Edge Hill University this Sunday (December 11) and will help raise funds for a host of charities, including efforts to establish a network of life saving defibrillators at sites across the borough.

She said: "The four races on the day have a festive theme, with a 200m Rudolph costume dash, a wheels race, a Rudolph themed family race of 1,500 m and a 5k race which participants can run, jog or walk and enjoy the beautiful surroundings of the Edge Hill campus.

"Proceeds for the £5 entry fee per individual runner or the whole family will raise much needed funds for portable defibrillators to be sited across West Lancashire and also to help support the Womens Refuge as part of the mayoress's charity. Rudolph looks forward to seeing you there where you can also enjoy the army assault course, sports massages and other facilities available on this special day."

For more information about the event, which kicks off at 11am, head to Premier Sport, Sporting Edge at the university, or go online to www.mapchallenges.co.uk/rudolphrun to get your entry form and send it in or bring it along on the day.

Band to sound bright note

AN ACCLAIMED brass band will be helping to brighten up Christmas when they perform a festive concert in Parbold this weekend.

Douglas Music, which hosts a series of concerts in the village hall every year, said it has enlisted the talents of the Pemberton Old Wigan DW Band this Saturday (December 10), with a host of wintry classics to be performed at the venue on The Green.

Douglas Music spokesperson Michael Bonsall said this week: "Pemberton Old Wigan DW Band returns to Douglas Music's Live Music at the Weekend with a Christmas Concert of festive music to brighten the dark days before Christmas on Saturday in the village hall.

"The audience will be able to join with a little carol singing mixed in with the Christmas and winter melodies and traditional tunes from across the world. In recent years, the band has gone from strength to strength and has an established Championship Band led by Mark Bentham."

The concert begins at 7.45pm, with tickets costing £12 (£5 concessions). For further information and tickets, please contact the box office on 01257 464946.

Switch for ops

OPERATIONS for Abdominal Aortic Aneurysm (AAA) are likely to be carried out at a centre of excellence in Liverpool rather than Southport and Ormskirk Hospital NHS Trust from next year.

The Doctor Foster report stated that Southport and Ormskirk Hospital NHS Trust performed less than 35 AAA operations during 2010/11, and better outcomes could be achieved at a specialist unit.

The report explained: "Patients treated in hospitals that perform operations rarely are more likely to die. Evidence of this has been available in many areas of surgery for more than a decade but the problem persists."

AAA is a weakening of a major blood vessel in the body and can be fatal if it ruptures.

Five charged after protest at fracking site

By David Simister

FIVE people have been charged after a group of protesters stormed a controversial fracking site in Banks.

Two women, aged 23 and 24 and a man, aged 34, have been charged with aggrevated trespass at a shale gas exploration site operated by Cuadrilla and are due to appear before Ormskirk Magistrates Court on Tuesday, December 20.

The trio, all from the Bristol area, are understood to have been involved in the protest organised by the Rising Tide campaign group, who have voiced their operation to shale gas drilling at sites across the UK on a number of occasions.

A 40–year–old woman and 42–year–old man, also from Bristol, were charged with obstructing or disrupting a person engaged in a lawful activity.

The protest has drawn criticism from site operators Cuadrilla, who said the protesters were not local, had "not bothered" to participate in dialogue and were using up police time.

A company spokesperson told national media earlier after the protest: "We have shown over 100 people around our operational sites over the last year."

It is the second time in recent weeks the Banks site has been stormed by protesters, after members of environmental campaign group Frack Off climbed up the rig in a similar protest last month. Cuadrilla's shale gas exploration operations have drawn criticism from councillors, MPs and environmental groups in the north west after it conceded last month that tremor activity in the Fylde area earlier this year was likely to have been caused by a similar site near Blackpool.

Some environmental groups opposed to shale gas are calling for a moratorium on fracking. It's not just the process itself that they're concerned about. They say large–scale gas extraction will lead to more reliance on fossil fuels rather than alternative energy sources.

The industry argues that there is big potential for a new home–grown energy source.

•The site has also been given national attention after the Cuadrilla shale gas exploration site appeared on the BBC show Countryfile, after presenter John Craven visited the site.

Ray McKinty and David Speak on the Beaujolais Nouveau Run

Pub serves 'first wine' after marathon trip to France

By Henry James

A WEST Lancashire pub served up a famous 'first wine' – after a 1,600–mile round trip to the vineyards of southern France.

Deputy manager of Lathom's Ship Inn David Speak took part in the Beaujolais Nouveau Run– one of the most famous events in the wine calendar.

He was joined by the co–owner of the Ship Inn, Ray McKinty and Ray's friend Duncan McRae.

David said: "The Beaujolais Nouveau run is famous all over the world, with people racing to be the first to serve the wine. People come from America and even China and Russia to pick up the wine."

The trip took 48 hours and they were also given a tour of the vineyards where they tasted a variety of wines on offer. After they had made their purchases, the group drove to Lyon and took part in some of the Beaujolais Nouveau celebrations.

The next morning they made the journey back to the borough to hold a French–themed evening at the pub.

David added: "This was the first time we had done the trip. It was 800 miles each way but we will definitely do it again as it was good fun.

"At the the pub's French evening, we served snails, foiegras, frogs legs and other types of French food. It was also an opportunity for people to taste the Beaujolais."

Outrage of mobile users as Orange ups monthly charges

By David Simister

MOBILE phone users have contacted The Champion to complain over increases in their monthly charges from the New Year despite having contracts.

Customers of telecom giant Orange were told last week they will have to pay an extra 4.34% on their bills.

Champion reader Colin O'Toole, one of those who got in touch to protest, said: "This stinks, and I for one will never use Orange again. I agreed a contract and they have broken it."

Orange users were notified of the increase by text message and directed to a statement on the company's website.

The statement said: "As you probably know, inflation is at a 20–year high, which is having a significant impact on businesses and households alike. Unfortunately, we've had to re–evaluate our prices for the first time. This is lower than the Retail Price Index measure of inflation, which currently stands at 5.4%. Out of plan charges, such as calls, texts and data will not be changing."

However, communications watchdog Ofcom is advising customers to query Orange's claim, directing them to its regulations which state that consumers can exit a contract without penalty, even if a provider states in its conditions that prices may rise during the contract.

Orange merged with fellow mobile phone provider T–Mobile earlier this year to create Everything Everywhere, the UK's largest mobile phone operator but has reported an 18.5% slide in profits.

GIVE a loved one the chance to soar into the skies with a Christmas present with a difference.

That's the offer from West Lancashire Microlight School, who are inviting thrillseekers from across the region to see some spectacular views on one of their taster sessions on a flight taking off from their base at Ince Blundell.
"The location is pretty good with us being based near the coast - once you're up, within a few minutes you've got a really spectacular view, where you can see North Wales, the Lake District, and inland towards Winter Hill. We can even get permission to fly in controlled airspace, so you, could, for instance, see the waterfront at Liverpool from the air," he said.

"Aviation captures a lot of people's imagination, but the cost of getting a pilot's licence can be a bit expensive, so microlighting offers a very affordable alternative in what are very capable aircraft."
West Lancashire Microlight School offers a whole host of different aircraft you can take to the skies in but for the ultimate thrill I'd recommend a ride in the Rotax-engined Flexwing, which offers you the wind-in-the-face, bugs-in-the-teeth thrills any aspiring Biggles needs to try out - and more importantly - a cockpit that's cut away at the sides to let you look down and see the spectacular scenery once you're up in the air.
As I we soared through the skies on my own taster flight somewhere above Seaforth I was delighted and worried in equal measure when I was offered an opportunity I wasn't expecting; the chance to actually fly the aircraft itself. Eat your heart out, Easyjet!
With the expanses of the Mersey to the right and the now ant-sized residents of Crosby to my left I wrapped my gloved fingers gingerly around the controls, just slightly terrified that I was about to plunge us both to a watery death, but I needn't have worried.
What I've anticipated to be the most frightening moment of microlighting - actually flying one for yourself - is in fact the biggest surprise of the afternoon. If you've mastered the delicate of driving a car, then you'll get the hang of one of these, because it's a masterclass of intuition and easiness.
Terrifying, heart-pounding, unpleasant and exposed - nope, going up in a microlight is none of these things, but you're almost certain to take off your safety helmet to reveal the huge grin you only ever get from adrenaline-fuelled experiences. It is really, really good fun.
At £60 for a 20 minute taster session it might not be the most conventional Christmas present you'll ever give, but it'll get the thrillseeker in your family absolutely hooked. You won't regret it.

THERMOGRAPHY THE SAFE BREAST SCREENING FOR ALL WOMEN.

Despite the valiant efforts made by the NHS to reduce the incidents of breast cancer deaths by detecting the condition earlier with mammographic screening the numbers of new breast cancer cases have risen again. It is now estimated that one in eight women will get breast cancer at some time in their lives. While most of the new cases of breast cancer are still found in women over 50 years of age (those who are included in the NHS screening program) alarmingly the second highest incidents of new breast cancer cases are now found in women in their late thirties and early forties. This group of women and those younger have no routine early detection screening program under the NHS.

To achieve the goal of detecting breast cancer earlier and reducing the incidents of breast cancer death it is blatantly obvious that we must screen women at a much younger age. This must be achieved by using a screening method that eliminates the the risk of exposing younger healthy women to the dangerous levels of ionising radiation associated with mammography and with a procedure that can detect breast abnormalities in young women with denser breast tissue.

The American college of Radiology Imaging Network says that around 40% of women getting screening mammograms have dense breasts, with younger women generally having dense breasts. A January 2011 study by the Mayo Clinic found three quarters (75%) of cancers in women with denser breast tissue are missed by mammography.

To rectify this a law has been passed in several states in America that is designed to prevent women with denser breast tissue being needlessly exposed to a method of screening that is not suitable for them, and may miss cancers other screening procedures could find.

When it has been determined that women in these states have denser breast tissue radiologist's have to send this text; Because your mammogram demonstrates you have dense breast tissue, which could hide small abnormalities, you might benefit from supplementary screening tests, depending on your individual risk factors. A report of your mammogram results which contains information about your breast density, has been sent to your physician's office and you should contact your physician if you have any questions or concerns about this notice.

It is well known that mammography is less accurate in detecting breast abnormalities in younger women with denser breast tissue and that doctors are concerned that by unnecessarily exposing younger women to the levels of ionising radiation used in mammography, they will increase the numbers of new breast cancer cases.

Thermography is the ideal supplementary screening procedure for all women especially younger women with denser breast tissue.

Thermography is not limited by dense breast tissue and can detect breast abnormalities in younger women with dense breast tissue. With the advances in computer technology and the development of high resolution thermal imaging cameras and sophisticated image analysis software, Digital Infra-red Thermal Imaging (DITI) is recognised as a significant addition to the screening procedures used in the early detection of breast cancer. With its advantages of a safe, radiation free, non contact (no clamping of the breast) and being safe for all ages, it is rapidly becoming the screening choice for concerned women.

Thermography is not meant as a replacement for mammography they are both completely different screening tools. Mammography is a test of anatomy and can detect a mass once it has reached a size when it is large enough and dense to block a x-ray. Thermography is a test of physiology and can detect the subtle changes that occur when a tumour is at a development stage.

This medically recognised screening tool opens the door for the millions of young health women between the ages of sixteen and fifty who do not as yet have the benefit of early detection programs to be screened without the risk of unnecessary exposure to radiation, and with no worries about the breast density limitations of mammography.

Other groups of the public who may benefit from mammography are; Women who have already been diagnosed as having cancer and do not want to expose themselves to ionising radiation, women who have implants, women who have had mastectomies and have no breast to place between the clamps used in mammography, men, women with BRACA 1 or BRACA 2 mutated genes who have an elevated risk of damage from ionising radiation, women who find the clamping of the breasts painful, disabled women who find the procedure of mammography distressing, women who already have a tumour that may be disturbed by the clamping procedure.

For more information about Digital Infra-red Thermal Imaging you can call Medical Thermal Imaging on 0151 931 5001.

Thermography is not intended as a replacement for mammography the aim is to offer women a rightful and ethical choice of screening procedure and to provide a safe screening procedure for young women who as yet have no routine screening program.

What doctor's say

Every woman should include breast thermography as part of their regular breast heath care. I have recommended the use of this technology extensively over the years in my newsletter.
Susan M. Lark, M.D.
Distinguished Author and Leading Expert in Women's Health

Women need to know that breast thermography is a promising and safe technology that is a welcome addition to helping women create breast health.
Christiane Northrup, M.D.
Noted Author and Leading Expert in Women's Health

I found in my research, and personally, that thermography can help a woman take a possible pre-cancerous condition and turn it around. Prevention is the gold standard of health care. In my opinion, breast thermography should be part of every woman's yearly exam to help prevent breast cancer, and for early detection.
Nan Kathryn Fuchs, Ph.D
Editor, Women's Health Letter

Infrared imaging of the breast should be an integral part of any breast cancer screening program due to its value as an independent risk factor for breast cancer and its value as a prognostic indicator.
Jonathan Head, Ph.D.
Tumor Cell Biologist and Pioneer in Breast Cancer Vaccines

Quality controlled abnormal infrared images heighten our index of suspicion in cases where clinical or mammographic findings are equivocal or nonspecific and signal the need for further investigation rather than observation. With the addition of infrared imaging, our sensitivity of image detection has increased from 83% to 93%.

Watch your speed for safe Christmas

DRIVE at the right speed and keep a safe distance from other road users to avoid a devastating Christmas.

These were key messages to students at West Lancashire College in a talk from the Lancashire Fire and Rescue Service on how to prevent accidents.

The service highlighted the Young Drivers Education Programme and spoke about the number of deaths on UK roads. Last year 1,857 people were killed and 216 families in Lancashire have been left devastated by losing people in road traffic accidents.

Colin Jones and Tony Hewitt from the Fire and Rescue service showed hard–hitting clips to students.

Mr Hewitt said: "Young people think it is uncool to wear a seat belt but need to realise that not only can they be killed but other passengers can be killed by them slamming into them in a crash."

Mike Cooney public service tutor at the college, also added that he knew two young men who had recently been killed on the roads, one of which was a West Lancashire College student.

He added: "Please be aware of your speed and pay particular attention to other drivers around you.

"Two 18–year–old men have had their lives cut short and it is such a waste of a young life, along with their parents being left devastated."

County launches contest of true grit

THE gritters will helping to keep the borough's highways clear this winter – and one of them could bear a name chosen by your child.

Lancashire County Council said it has launched a contest to give youngsters the chance to name the vehicles used by the local authority's gritting teams.

The winning names will be displayed above the drivers' cabs.

A spokesperson for the local authority said: "Three vehicles will be named with a winner chosen from each of the county's highways areas, north, south and east.

"The winner's school class will also be offered the chance to visit their local highways depot to see the newly named wagon unveiled, meet the drivers, and see the forecasting equipment and huge mounds of salt which make the whole operation work."

For more details on the competition, which is open to children between the ages of five and ten years old, and to see more information about the the county council's plans to keep Lancashire moving this winter, go online to www.lancashire.gov.uk/winter.

The closing date for entries is December 20, with the winners to be announced on January 16.

All aboard for the Christmas express!

YOUNGSTERS enjoyed a winter wonderland at the West Lancashire Light Railway in Hesketh Bank in the run–up to last Christmas.

This year the Santa Specials, pulled by steam locomotives, will be running again at weekends to visit Toyland and Father Christmas. The West Lancashire Light Railway is a two foot gauge passenger carrying railway located in Hesketh Bank.

The line features a number of interesting locomotives and other railway equipment brought together from industrial lines from elsewhere in Great Britain and from overseas. The Railway is a non–profit making organisation and is operated and supported by the West Lancashire Light Railway Trust. Volunteers are always needed to help maintain and develop the railway as well as operating the trains.

The trains will run on December 11, 17, 18 and on Christmas Eve, with fares costing £7 for children (which includes the cost of a present from Santa Claus) and £4 for adults. For more information, go to www.westlancs.org or call 01772 815881.

Chantelle and Ruby Code NA

Ruby's not just an ordinary lap dog

Report by Ron Ellis

AUDIENCES at Opera Viva's recent production of 'La Bohème' were delighted with the performance of toy poodle Ruby who made her appearance as Musetta's lap dog in Act Two.

They did not realise however exactly how talented and hard–working Ruby, aged two years old, actually is.

Ruby is a trainee with nationally registered charity DogAID who train clients' own pets to become fully registered assistance dogs. DogAID have taught owner Chantelle Rea–Bradley to train Ruby who now assists with a range of tasks including emptying the washing machine as well as with dressing and undressing.

Many readers will remember Chantelle as Southport's very own children's entertainer who along with her previous toy poodles; Candy, Caucha and Cania, attended thousands of birthday parties and were featured in this paper on many occasions. "I've always owned dogs and decided to use them in my act so they could spend more time with me," said Chantelle.

A car accident in 2001 triggered mobility issues which prevented Chantelle from continuing to perform. In 2009, Cania the last remaining dog needed a pal for her twilight years.

"I chose Ruby to guarantee not only good temperament, but correct maximum adult weight so that Ruby would still be small enough for me to lift when full grown. A tiny but perfect companion for all the family," she added

Ironically, when DogAID agreed to training Ruby to help with chores, she proved to be the ideal pupil and just as effective as a bigger dog.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

PRAYER

HOLY SPIRIT

You, who make me see everything and show me the way to reach my ideals. You, who gave the Divine Gift to forgive and forget all that is done to me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank You for everything and affirm once more that I never want to be separated from You no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with You and my loved ones in their perpetual glory. To that end, and submitting to God's Holy Will, I ask You (mention your request).

This prayer must be said for three consecutive days. After the third day the request will be granted no matter how difficult it may be. Promise to publish the entire dialogue as a condition of having your request granted.

P.F.

Peugeot stylists are 'back on form' with new 508

Road test by David Simister

AS the tailgate arced gracefully upward the pretty new Peugeot made perfect sense. The new 508 isn't the first estate with the option of a door that opens automatically, but it's a feature you'll appreciate if your hands are filled with, say, garden furniture.

It's a nice touch that shows the French firm's been doing its homework with its latest range of mid–range of saloons and estates. Then again, to truly shine it's got to take on not just the likes of the Mondeo and the 3–Series, and that's going to require an awful lot of swotting up.

Luckily the 508's got off to a good start before you even open the door, because it looks good. Where its immediate predecessor, the 407, divided opinion with its shark–like styling and unusual proportions, the new arrival harks back to the days of the 406 and 405, when Peugeot were regarded as the makers as some of the prettiest saloons in the business. Lithe, elegant and pleasingly proportioned, it's clear that Peugeot's stylists are back on form.

It gets even better once you get in; I've praised Peugeots of late for the quality of their cabins but this one's even better, because you get acres of space to play whether you're in the front and back.

By resisting the urge to make their estate into "a lifestyle sports tourer" (or deliberately too small for style's sake, in plain English) the company's created a genuine loadlugger for the Dobbies generation. Your luggage might as well be in a different county.

But of course the downside of it being such a big car on the outside is obvious; it's a big car on the outside too, meaning it'll be trickier to squeeze into parking spaces or to slip through narrow streets.

It's also eye–wateringly expensive towards the top of the range, with the version I tested venturing into executive car territory with its £30,000 pricetag! Expect to pay a much more reasonable £22,000 for the entry–level saloon and a grand more for the estate, which both come with 2.0 litre diesels and offer enough toys, performance and space to take on its many rivals for your money.

In fact the 508's only real problem is one that hasn't arrived yet; BMW's new 3–Series, which arrives next year. But if you want a saloon or estate that's as good to be in as it is to look at, then Peugeot's new arrival is a confident contender.

Steer clear of bad gifts for petrolheads

Life On Cars
DAVID SIMISTER
www.lifeoncars.blogspot.com

AS the final bits of tinsel went up in The Champion office it dawned on me that it's December and Christmas is upon us. Mince pies, mulled wine, sleigh bells and BandAid are back firmly on the festive menu.

The only problem is that I'm a petrolhead – and if you're reading this column, so are you – which means running the risk of getting a petrolhead present from a non–petrolhead partner, mum or mate down the pub. Which this year will almost certainly be Duel, the latest in a long line of Jeremy Clarkson DVDs. It is the default Christmas gift if you know someone who likes their cars.

I haven't seen Duel yet but I've seen all of the fifteen or so DVDs and videos which preceded it, which have each ended up on my shelf after someone bought it me as a Christmas present. I can therefore safely bet this month's salary that Duel will contain the following; a race between some shiny new supercars, an appearance by The Stig, an unloved old car getting destroyed in a new and novel way and an analogy which winds up at least one celebrity. It is Police Academy 7 following Police Academy 6.

You could, of course, get the petrolhead in your life something for Christmas which isn't Clarkson's DVD; how about, for instance, a Land Rover branded lambswool wrap? Or a set of BMW–branded Bluetooth earphones? Or the oldest festive favourite of all, a Ferrari–branded baseball cap? There is no more surefire way of letting people passing you in the street that you can't afford the car you're advertising at your own expense. Car–branded gifts are not cool. Don't do it.

Buying Christmas gifts for petrolheads can be a tricky business.

If you really are stuck for Christmas ideas for the car nut in your family or group of friends then I'll happily suggest any of the following; a track day package, a day's off–roading tuition, a year's subscription to a decent car mag, a glossily–produced coffee table book on your car bore's marque of choice, an artwork from the Steve McQueen or Michael Caine movie of your choice or – if you're really desperate – one of those car care kits available from any department store worth their salt.

I await my DVD–shaped Christmas present from Santa later this month…

Focus ST given Sweeney role

THE latest fast Ford has been given a starring role in a remake of a classic 1970s cop show destined for the big screen next year.

Ford has confirmed that the new Focus ST will be appearing alongside Ray Winstone and Plan B in a feature–length remake of The Sweeney, the classic police procedural starring John Thaw and Dennis Waterman. The company said its new model, which goes on sale next year and musters up 250bhp from a 2.0 litre turbocharged engine, will be powerful enough to ensure the film's crooks "will always struggle to make a clean getaway".

The film arrives in cinemas next September but the Focus ST goes on sale next summer.

United sign up former England Under 18 player

SKELMERSDALE United signed former England Under 18 midfielder, James Thomas from Prescot Cables last week, writes Neil Leatherbarrow.

The 26–year–old is known for having a cultured left–foot and has previously played for Vauxhall Motors, Caernarfon Town and Warrington.

He has played down under, for Dandenong Thunder in Melbourne and in the New Zealand professional league.

United manager Tommy Lawson said: "James arrives with a glowing reference from Prescot manager Dave Ridler, and I am delighted to have signed him."

Thomas might well bring some additional fun to the dressing room as his nickname is 'Smiler.'

Two goals from two shots leaves United seeing red

Report by Neil Leatherbarrow

Woodley Sports 2
Skelmersdale United 1

ON a windswept, rain lashed afternoon, Skelmersdale were left cursing their luck as the home team produced a pair of quality goals to take all the points.

United hit the woodwork and were faced with an emergency goalkeeper who put in a performance that many regular keepers would struggle to better on a frustrating afternoon.

Matters didn't start well for Skelmersdale manager Tommy Lawson, as he lost one of his most consistent players, Rob McIntosh, to injury inside four minutes.

On the quarter hour United were caught out by a wonderful through ball from Jack Dorney, however, that was more than matched by the first touch that Woodley man of the match Jordan Stepien applied to the ball, pushing the it into space and then slotting it past keeper Sam Ashton from 15 yards.

Skelmersdale went on the attack and a 27th minute long ball was helped on by Shaun Tuck to Phil Mooney, who was tripped by Darren Stephenson.

Tuck fired the penalty low into the corner.

In the 29th minute, left–back Martin Crowder got forward, but his cross across the face goal, didn't get a touch.

Crowder was in action again four minutes later, his finely weighted long–ball finding Mark Houghton in a central position, home keeper Chris Kennings came out to challenge but Houghton flicked the ball into space behind him, Kettings crashed into Houghton denying him a clear run on goal.

The result was a red card and Stepien took over in goal.

From the free–kick, Tuck thumped the foot of the post.

In the 40th minute, Mike Burke headed the ball down, but Stepien saved well and the cover keeper pulled a magnificent acrobatic save to keep out Tuck after Crowder set him up.

Woodley regrouped during the interval but things looked good for Skelmersdale after the restart when a great spin by Houghton put Tuck in, but a superb tackle blocked him. Then Mooney went close after Lee Parle and Houghton combined well.

Things went wrong in the 67th minute.

A loose pass saw the ball moved quickly to Woodley striker John Marsden, he turned in from the left on a run across the United defence, before unleashing a thunderbolt shot low into the corner.

In the 75th minute, frustration got the better of Tuck and his tussle with Ricky Anane brought a red card.

United still almost saved a point.

Burke went desperately close with an 86th minute header from a Crowder free–kick.

In a perverse way the sending off didn't benefit Skelmersdale, Stepien had a great game in goal after replacing Kettings and you just couldn't tell he wasn't a regular keeper, it only adds insult, too, that the foul that got Kettings sent off almost certainly prevented a Skelmersdale goal that would have given them the lead.

It was no wonder frustration set in before the end.

Linnets let lead slip twice

Burscough 2
Rushall Olympic 4

PAUL Williams put Burcough ahead on 15 minutes and Louis Keenan equalised with a volley on half–time. Burscough regained the lead when Phil Quirk bundled in the rebound from a Conor Roberts free kick. Rushall levelled from a penalty and took the lead with a header from Jonathan Haynes before Alan Wilkes scored the fourth.

Maghull cup win

GOALS from Brad Smart and Paul Keenan saw Maghull through to the semi finals of the Wirral Senior Cup against Cammell Lairds.

Brad Smart netted from close range after only six minutes but Lairds equalised 15 minutes later when Kris Hesketh scored directly from a corner. Two minutes before the break Keenan restored Maghull's advantage when he headed home a free kick.
